

World Population Day

In observance of World Population Day, the NSS Unit Usharama College conducted a seminar on 11th July 2025 to raise awareness about the rapidly growing global population and its associated challenges. The seminar aimed to sensitize students on issues such as overpopulation, resource distribution, environmental stress, and the importance of family planning.

The event commenced with a welcome address by the NSS Programme Officer, who highlighted the significance of World Population Day, initiated by the United Nations in 1989. The keynote speaker, Phani Kumar, a renowned sociologist and environmentalist, delivered an insightful talk on the theme “Sustainable Future: Controlling Population Growth for a Better Tomorrow.”
